

BLANDING'S TREE SNAKE

(No known local names)

Toxicodryas vexator

- Reaching lengths of up to 2.8 m
- Adult males are black above and yellow on underside
- Secretive and lives in the trees
- Active at night
- When threatened, it inflates the body, hisses, flattens the head, and opens the mouth
- Will strike if threat display does not work
- Very little is known about bites from this species

Venomous - Danger Not Well Known

Bite could be a medical emergency - seek treatment

Neurotoxic venom

No antivenom - treat symptoms